Inside the tent, the Mystery Inc. gang met the ringmaster, Bella Barnstorm. With her were the Trapeze Twins, Samson the Strong Man and Harry the Hypnotist.

"There's been some bad luck," Bella said. "The money from the box office has gone missing."

"And all the things we use in our acts keep breaking," said the twins.

"There's a jinx!" Samson shouted. "I know it!"

Our big sister, Nia, was at a table studying her lines for her next show. Dad called Nia a triple threat because she could sing and dance and act. Nia was always in a show, and she was always studying her lines.

"There she is!" yelled Tiana. She jumped up and down.

I spotted Auntie Sam walking along the pavement and ran to open the door. As soon as she walked in, Tiana wrapped herself around Auntie Sam's leg.

Tiana was holding her leg so tight that Auntie Sam couldn't even walk. She just laughed about it. That's how Auntie Sam was. She almost never got mad.

"Hi, Auntie Sam!" I said.

"Hi, Azaleah," said Auntie Sam. She bent down and kissed my forehead.

Mum hurried out of the kitchen and grabbed the suitcase next to the door. She set it next to Auntie Sam. Mum was so busy rushing around that she forgot to say hello to her own little sister.

"Tiana, give Auntie Sam her leg back," said Mum. "Azaleah, go and get your backpack. Nia, time to go."

Nia looked up from her script. "Auntie Sam! I didn't realize you were here."

Sometimes my big sister didn't pay attention to anything else while she was

CHAPTER 1

"Farah, keep walking. We don't want to be left behind," Mama says as she gently pushes my back.

I'm in front of the Einstein Academy's library, a brick building filled with thousands of books. My old school's one-room library was near the music classes. My reading was always interrupted by flute practice or tuba lessons.

"Our library is just one of the things that makes Einstein Academy so remarkable," says the assistant head, Ms Maxim, who is leading the tour. A group of parents and students, including me and my mama and baba, are here for a school visit. "We have more than ten thou-

“It’s Dr Liam Race, the most famous scientist in the universe!” Jed ran up towards the man. Enzo stayed back. He’d never heard of this man. Besides, Dr Lane wasn’t excited either. She just looked annoyed. Enzo wondered why.

“Silly people,” she murmured to herself. “If only they knew.”

Knew what? Enzo wanted to ask. But then the man spotted Dr Lane and made his way over to them.

“Penny! It’s so great to see you.” He walked over with Jed and gave her a hug. She didn’t hug back. Then he reached into his suitcase, pulled out a book and waved it in the air. Enzo’s interest immediately perked up.

“Dr Penny Lane was my mentor a long time ago,” Dr Race said to Jed and Enzo. “She’s the reason I’m as successful as I am today. I want to

WINTER HOLIDAY

Outside, the world is a winter wonderland. Big, fluffy flakes fall from the sky and cover everything in a blanket of snow.

You sit with your friends in the school canteen. The world around you is abuzz. It's a week before the winter holidays. Everyone is more interested in talking about their plans for the holidays than they are in eating lunch.

"That's some great powder out there," your friend Tess says, looking out of the window. "Are you thinking of hitting the slopes with us in the holidays?"

"Maybe," you reply. "I don't know if I'll have time."

CHAPTER 1 NEW TEAM, SAME RIVAL

"This just doesn't look right."

You're staring at yourself in the full-length mirror in your bedroom. Around it, the walls are cluttered with posters of your favorite pro football players. The rest of the room contains nothing more than an unmade bed and a load of cardboard boxes.

You shake your head. You can't believe the football top you're wearing. It has a black stripe down the middle and across the front is the word Jaguars.

You shake your head. "We had to go and move, didn't we?" you mutter.

Turn the page.

CHAPTER THREE

EXPLORE ITALY

Italy is a popular country to explore. More than 60 million people visit each year. They come to see its historic sites and natural beauty. They also come for the food and culture.

BEAUTIFUL COASTLINES

Italy is in the south of Europe. Many parts of it are warm and sunny. People visit the sandy beaches on its long coastline. One of the most famous regions is the Amalfi Coast. It is south of Naples. Cliffs tower over the beaches. Many of them have villages perched at the top.

THE ITALIAN LAKES

In the north of Italy, there are beautiful lakes. They were carved out by ice thousands of years ago. The lakes are surrounded by beaches and towns. There are also mountains at the northern end. Ferries take tourists from town to town.

Positano is one of the most popular villages on the Amalfi Coast.

FACT

Lake Garda is the largest of the lakes, at 370 sq km (143 square miles). At 54 km (34 miles) long, Lake Maggiore is longer, but it is narrower.

What is soil?

Soil covers most of Earth's land. It is on the ground. We walk on it every day. Soil is sometimes called earth.

All living things need soil. Soil feeds plants. Plants need the nutrients in soil to grow. Plants also need the water in soil.

Soil gives a home to many animals, including insects. It helps people make their homes too. We build houses and other buildings on soil.
