Funny Girl

Author(s): D.L. Green • 133 x 191mm • 112 pages

Shelby Bloom is the new kid at school, and she's in search of an identity. Taking stock of herself, she worries that she's no sports superstar, no wiz kid, no social butterfly and no beauty queen. But she is funny – at least she thinks she is (and her sister says she's a riot). Shelby decides she'll be the funny girl, the one who wins friends by keeping them in stitches. Soon she finds that while she really does have a comic flair, she also has a few things to learn about what makes people laugh, when the timing is right and how things can go wrong for the jokester.

Riley Reynolds

Author(s): Jay Albee • 133 x 191mm • 64 pages

Riley Reynolds loves crafting (and making messes), music (and playing it loud), and animals (from unicorns to dragons to fish to birds). They also love their family and friends. From making costumes to saving a park, Riley is always ready to help! Riley is non-binary and loves that too, proving that you don't have to identify as a boy or girl. You can just be yourself and be happy! Riley shows that being true to yourself is the most important thing you can do in this lively chapter book series by Jay Albee.

Gross Gods

Author(s): Blake Hoena • 133 x 190mm • 64 pages

Gross yourself out with these hilariously disgusting chapter book series based on Greek and Roman myths. In these laugh-out-loud retellings, famous gods and goddesses battle otherworldly awfulness: Hercules scoops piles of poop! Theseus takes on a yucky, mucky maze! Jason finds a funkified fleece! And the monstrous Medusa tames her oh-so stinky snake-hair! With wacky illustrations and descriptions at the end of how the story links to the original myth, this series will have mythology lovers and gross-out fans alike reading in legendary proportions.

Alien Encounters

Author(s): Ailynn Collins, Danielle Smith-Llera • 133 x 190mm • 72 pages

Have you ever looked up at the night sky and wondered if we're alone? Does intelligent life exist on other worlds or in other galaxies? Alien Encounters poses these questions through startling and sometimes spooky stories about young people who meet life from beyond our planet. After reading these amazing tales, young people will never look at the sky or the stars the same way again. Was that a shooting star? Or is it someone, or some . . . thing, coming to visit?

a cyclops, glaring at me.

Highly hummus.

"Well, I wanted to see the library," I say uncertainly, because I've never talked to a tree before.

"Waste of time," says the Tree, burling around me to catch up with Mr Maxim's clicking heels.

"Come on, girls," say Mama and Mrs Liu, pushing forwards.

Allie and I roll our eyes. Our mothers are actually more excited about the Einstein Academy than we are.

The Einstein Academy is a school for "gifted" kids.

Teachers have called us "gifted", although the only

"gift" we seem to get is more homework than anyone else.

"Who is that kid?" I ask Allie as we trot after everyone else. "The one with the green hair?"

"Bryan Najarian," she says, like a reporter. "Also in our year. Attended Highlandtown Charter School."

"And... the green hair?"

"You didn't notice it before in assembly?" she asks as we follow our group into the science building. "Pretty hard to miss green hair."

I shrug and wave to Mama, who has paused to see where I am.

"Oh, Farah," she whispers, grabbing my hand in excitement. "This place is so amazing. What a lucky girl you are!"

Farah Rocks New Beginnings

Author(s): Susan Muaddi Darraj • 146 x 210mm • 144 pages

Farah Hajjar is just starting at her new school when something terrible happens - her house burns down. Even worse, the house fire may be her fault. When her family moves to temporary housing, Farah feels the guilt piling up. Luckily Farah finds comfort in writing, and she channels her energy into starting a creative writing club at her new school. But can Farah convince people at her new science-focused school to support it?

Legend of Jack Riddle

Author(s): H. Easson • 129 x 198mm • 264 pages

So what if 12-year-old Jack's great-great-great-great-great aunt has oddly youthful looks? (Probably cosmetic surgery.) Or a hat she never removes? (Fashion victim.) Or goes out into the creepy forest at midnight to play bingo? (Must be what people do in the country.) Who cares about that when her cottage doesn't even have Wi-Fi?! Forced to visit his distant relative with the unusual name of Gretel, Jack is about to find out that fairy tales aren't sparkly, cheesy love stories. They're dark. They have claws. They're a warning. And when you're the unwilling hero of your own fairy tale, you might be the one who's taught a nasty lesson.

LUKEZILLA BEATS THE GAME

Trinity stomps, Spike and Caprina charge, Vile howls and slashes away. Spike evades Honeypie and battles over a fence to get behind us, punching and pinching and scurrying away. It's hard to fight facing both ways, but Vile spins around and chases the monkey back to the side, pressing him against the fence and sticking ferocious fangs into him. Honeypie gets herself tangled up with Pingo so she can't help.

The audience groans as Spike falls from the screen. Ma's monkey has been the star of the 4,300,000th day.

Caprina and Trunkzilla chase their tank and cannon back to their wall. They stand stout, defending their base. But we can't give them time for Spike to return. Caprina charges right at Pingo. He uses a roll maneuver to dodge, which is fine because Caprina rams the wall, backs up and prepares to charge again.

I go head to head with the rhino, trading hits and slams. Trunkzilla can win any one-on-one in the game because of his high health. I start to feel good about our chances. Spike will require before the match is over, but we've got a huge lead in cracking their wall and dealing damage to their other fighters.

Caprina takes another lunge at Pingo. Pingo dodges and Caprina crashes into a short run of fence, getting her horns caught. She shakes her head, straining to pull free. I realize with a sick feeling that she's been lured into a trap. Emily mutters a few bad words into her headphones.

"You weren't! Should have seen it coming!"

Spike returns, swings down and smashes Trunkzilla with a fury. Face of Caprina, Pingo is able to do roll dashes at me.

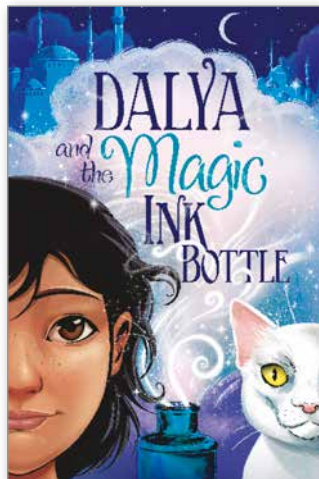

Lukezilla Beats the Game

Author(s): Kurtis Scaletta • 140 x 8mm • 240 pages

In real life, Lucas is small and unathletic. But as Trunkzilla in the online game Smashtown Frenzy, he's the biggest, toughest fighter on the streets. No wonder he prefers games to real life! He plans to spend all summer battling his way through the Smashtown tournament with his team, but his parents have other plans for him: volunteer work. Lucas signs up to be a Senior Sitter and gets matched with a cool old librarian named Isaac who likes cats and detective novels. Mornings with Isaac and afternoons gaming are working out great until Lucas's Smashtown success hits a speed bump and Isaac's health takes a tragic turn. Lucas saves Isaac's life but then finds himself burdened with a new sense of moral responsibility that gets him thrown off his team, banned from Smashtown, and made into a meme for internet haters. Some reward for being a hero! Lucas has one last chance to prevail, win back his friends, and show his parents how much gaming means to him.

J.M. EVENSON

Some like adventures. Some like to roam.
Some want a friend. Some want to go home.

It didn't look like a treasure map. It looked more like a poem or a riddle. I found my spine and wondered: Whatever this was, it didn't make much sense. I continued reading.

This magic bottle grants a wish.
But it will only give you one.

Not the magic bottle.
And it will be done.

The bottle granted a wish if I rolled it. In a game world pay out and ask me what I wanted? That was ridiculous. I giggled as myself wondering if the whole thing was a joke. Magic didn't exist. Everyone knew that. Besides, wish-granting games were supposed to be in lamps, not ink bottles. Maybe someone was spying me. Like a television programme that placed hidden people just to see what they do and then laughed at them when they left the set.

Still, a chance of hope melted my decision. What if it wasn't a joke?

I read the end of the roll-up note, which was written in slightly larger letters.

Your family has a secret,
both strange and true.
Discover the secret, if you're chosen.

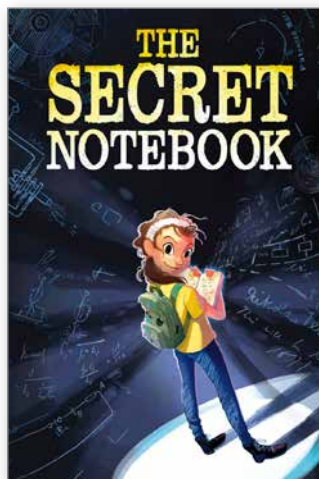

Dalya and the Magic Ink Bottle

Author(s): J.M. Evenson • 140 x 8mm • 200 pages

When twelve-year-old Dalya is dragged to Istanbul to help sell her family's ancestral home, the visit begins unpromisingly. Most of the aged mansion is off-limits because it's falling apart, her father is ignoring her and her great aunt keeps prattling on about a family curse. Despite warnings against it, Dalya tiptoes upstairs, where she finds an old bottle of magic ink hidden under a floorboard. She asks the bottle's jinn (aka genie) to grant her a simple wish... to send her home. Except the jinn interprets "go home" to mean "send me back in time and turn me into a cat." Then Dalya must set off on a wild adventure through Istanbul's animal underworld to find the jinn with the power to set things right.

We gently slipped through the pages, slipping to read a passage.

"I can tell you that I had a friend with absolute confidence. In reading messages through the walls without any wires. I have also great hopes of translating electric forces in the same way without wires."

"Wireless electricity? That's what Dr. Schwartz told us Tesla was working on," Henry said.

A thought came to me, but it felt like it originated from my gut, not my brain. "Maybe wireless electricity was also what Dr. Schwartz was working on. That's his life's work, and someone wants her to retire and leave."

Henry alerted my reflexes, and I slammed the book shut.

"Bitchwatching! I didn't know you were interested in birds!" Mom stepped into the conference room. She was a first fanatic. She even got permission from our landlord to put feeders outside our kitchen window. She ended up providing food for all the woodland creatures. I had given them names until it got out of hand.

"Oh no, not me. Bird? No, it's for school." I leaned over the book but decided not to consult it completely. That would make me look guilty.

"We got an email earlier about an incident at your school," Mom said.

Henry and I waited. Was there more bad news or was this the

Secret Notebook

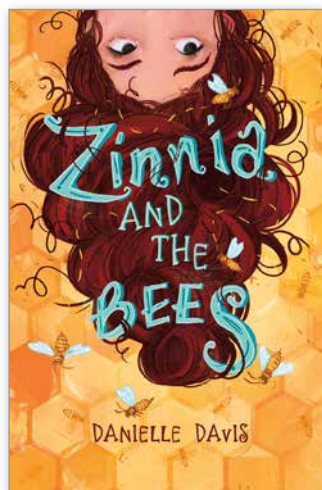

Author(s): D.A. D'Aurelio • 140 x 8mm • 224 pages

Riley Green is certain her lie detector pen will improve her status in a school full of kids from the most powerful families of Washington, D.C. But her plan collapses when her invention idea is stolen, her favourite teacher goes missing, and mysterious threats begin to appear around the city. Before vanishing, Riley's teacher entrusts her with her most prized possession, the lost notebook of Nikola Tesla, legendary inventor and scientist. Now Riley and her friends must protect the notebook from thieves who want to steal the details it holds about a dangerous invention. When Riley discovers another secret, she must decode a mysterious message before it's too late. Her teacher's life depends on it.

...I keep running around the museum, trying to distract myself with other things, one hand on my newspaper hat covering at all times.

Blue wall. Bees.

Big truck. Bees.

Billboard. Bees.

Black hat. Bees, bees, bees!

Clearly, I'm imagining things. That, or I've been crowned queen of the insect kingdom.

I'm not sure which is worse.

Finally, I spot the chocolate bridge on the sidewalk, and beyond it Dr. Floundrop's yard of drought-tolerant plants. Lou, who lives next door to us in the other half of the duplex, is using the pull-up bar in his door frame. Wiry grey hairs peek out of his Yorkie's fur, which is wet with sweat. He's spluttering from the effort of his pull-up.

Lou is an ergonomic coach. I've seen countless clients slump up the steps and into his hallway only to march their way back down. The sign on Lou's door, which is only visible when it's actually closed because he's not using the pull-up bar, reads ERGONOMICS ONLY COURTESY.

But now is not the time to watch Lou do a pull-up. I take advantage of his spine by following up the steps to the front steps, hoping he won't see me or my newspaper but or the bees underneath it.

"Hey, Zanny? How are ya?"

I step. Lou sees me.

A Jungle Palace

The soldiers marched for hours, until the silvered moon was high in the sky and Remy could barely see through the shadows that surrounded her. She kept her eyes on the airship, flying low above the treetops, blocking out a trail of stars as it went. She was beginning to wonder whether the jewelled man and his troops were planning to march all the way to Pandelara when a shout echoed through the foliage – a sharp order sent back from the front.

Remy realised with a start that they had obviously reached their destination. She'd been so focused on keeping track of the airship and not making sound over the uneven ground that she'd missed what was ahead of them. There, reaching above the dark mass of jungle, she could see with longing into the sky, a lantern mass of white in the moonlight. They rose high above the forest – higher even, Remy thought, than

"I'll miss you," I murmur.

Usually Clara tells me to speak louder, even though she can understand me perfectly. It's her way of trying to get me to come out of my shell, I think. This time she gives me a warm smile.

"Ping."

"Don't worry," she says. "I prayed that you would get chosen too."

My alarm goes off at seven. The service is at nine, but everyone in our building is expected to arrive at eight thirty. I need to shower and dress and do my hair.

I need to shower. I tell myself this over and over as I stare at my alarm clock. Its alarm is the same chime as the bells at the Temple of Icarus. Instead of humming it off, I lie there, thinking of how those bells have sounded to me on this morning for the past six years.

Children aged ten to sixteen are candidates for the labyrinth trial. Clara is sixteen. So am I. This is our last chance to become Icaris to enter the labyrinth and become angels.

Clara's older brother became an Icaris when he was twelve and we were ten. Clara cried but her mother was so proud and her brother was so excited and everyone was so pleased for him, that eventually Clara stopped crying. It happened suddenly after her brother had been gone for a couple of months. One night I was helping Clara dry her hair with her little grey handkerchiefs and the next I was praying with her for Icaris to send her into the labyrinth. Except that's never really what I prayed for.

Mother comes in for me seven minutes after seven. I close my eyes and pretend I've slept through my alarm. Mother wakes me with a light shake of my shoulder.

It's Clara who's desperate to enter the labyrinth and it's Clara who's bright, strong and fearless enough to take on any challenge. It's no surprise when she's chosen. But so is the girl who has always lived in her shadow. Together they enter. Within minutes, they are torn apart forever. Now the girl who has never left the city walls must fight to survive in a living nightmare, where one false turn with who to trust means a certain dead end.

Ukraine is the second largest country in Europe. It sits between Poland and Russia, between Western Europe and Asia. This position often played a crucial role in Ukraine's development. Historical events unfolded in the territory of Ukraine just because of its geographical location. Ukraine often served as a shield for Europe against many invasions by their eastern neighbours.

Flowchart Science: Habitats and Ecosystems

Author(s): Louise Spilsbury, Richard Spilsbury • 184 x 235mm • 48 pages

This series looks at science in an innovative and fun way. Using flowcharts to explore complicated ideas, such as how rainforests make their own rain and how carrion beetles clean deserts, the books present scientific topics in an easily accessible format. Real-world examples show how different habitats and ecosystems work.

Volcano

Author(s): Mary M. Cerullo • 224 x 279mm • 48 pages

The destructive forces of volcanoes are terrifying and well-known. But what about their other forces? Volcanoes can spur new growth of plants and trees. In the water, they create an environment where coral reefs and sea life can thrive. In fact, the meeting of volcanic fire and ocean water gave way to life on Earth. Award-winning children's science author Mary M. Cerullo brings her excellent research and signature storytelling style to the dynamic subject of volcanoes. Stitching together science, history and mythology, Cerullo explores these explosive wonders of nature and reveals the secrets they've been keeping since the beginning of the world.

Immigration Today

Author(s): Nancy Dickmann • 190 x 240mm • 32 pages

Covering the various reasons that people may want to move to the UK, this book takes an in-depth look at why and how people choose to become immigrants. From families fleeing war-torn countries, to workers looking for job opportunities, we cover the motivations, the challenges and the successes. This is a sympathetic and positive look at immigration today, helping children to understand the push and pull factors that bring people here. We consider the processes involved in immigration and asylum, how it can be hard to gain entry to the country and what happens when people try to get here illegally. And we'll also take a look at emigration and the factors that encourage UK residents to move abroad. Straightforward text, lively photographs and engaging case studies ensure readers will get a full, clear picture of migration.

Saving British Wildlife: Success Stories

Author(s): Claire Throp • 195 x 264mm • 32 pages

Readers who care about wild animals: roll up your sleeves, there is work to be done! Some species of animals, such as that the white-tailed eagle and the large blue butterfly, died out in Britain in the 20th century. But efforts by experts to reintroduce them from other countries have been successful. This book looks at the work being done to save British wildlife, focusing on the success stories that now see certain species thriving. We also touch on species whose numbers are starting to go down, such as hedgehogs, starlings, puffins and small tortoiseshell butterflies. Find out in our "Tips" section how you can help to look after the wildlife either in your own garden or when you are out in the countryside.

The Sun and Our Solar System

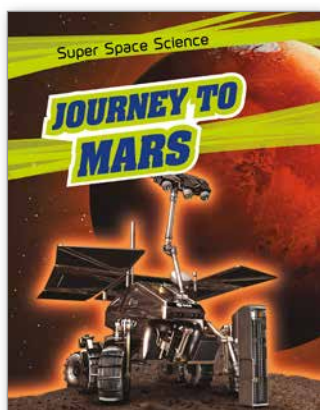

Author(s): Jen Green • 195 x 264mm • 32 pages

How do we know that the Sun is at the centre of our solar system? This scientific theory is known as heliocentrism. This fascinating book looks at the historical controversies that surround the theory of heliocentrism and tells the stories of the scientists who worked on the theory. It also examines how the theory of heliocentrism was arrived at, how it was tested and what impact the theory has had on our understanding of science today.

Decoding the Mind

Author(s): Matt Lilley, Melissa Mayer • 152 x 229mm • 64 pages

Has your best friend ever lied to your face? Have you ever laughed while your friend was crying? Have you ever lashed out at your sister and later regretted it? Life can often make you experience intense feelings, from scary anger to intense crushes to overwhelming happiness. Decoding the Mind will help you understand what's really going on in your (and your friends') brains. Plus, this fascinating topic teaches science curriculum content related to biology and evolution. Jokes aside, mental health is important, so these titles will also help you understand when these behaviours and feelings aren't normal and it's time to seek help.
